Conversation Guide

Lakeport Plantation

Use the conversation guide below while you are onsite for a family picnic or in the car after visiting Lakeport Plantation to continue the conversation about historical topics and what your family learned during their visit.

Family conversation guide after your visit

- What is something that stood out about what you learned today?
- What is your favorite thing you saw on our tour today?
- Did you notice anything in the home that we have in our house?
- Did you notice anything about the home that was different from our home?
- Did you hear our guide say anything that you have questions about?
- What do you think it would have been like to be a kid growing up at Lakeport?
- Can you believe the Mississippi River used to be right out the dining room window?
- What would be a vegetable you would want to grow in your garden here?
- Did you learn anything about growing cotton that surprised you?
- What things do they make with cotton?
- If you close your eyes and think about Lakeport Plantation, what images do you see? (Consider offering a color page or blank paper to let your children draw images they imagine from conversations today)

Tough Topics -

If you are willing to process the topic of slavery and your kids are old enough, you may talk more about the topic.

- Did you hear or read about the topic of slavery or enslaved people today?
- Do you understand what that is?
- Did you understand why it was the way the Johnson family operated their farm?
- Do you understand why it was wrong?
- What would you have felt if you were a person working at this farm?
- What would you have done the day General Custis came through?
- If you think of anything else you want to discuss on this topic, let me know!
